

Want to Go Home

by [illegible] and [illegible]

Many of my foreigner friends agree with this.

British people's day finishes really early.

It was very weird for me when I first moved to the UK

But not only just people's homes...

Most of the shops close before 6pm and many of them don't open on a Sunday.

You know,
shops open until at least 8 or 9pm.

Many shops are
open even later
than that too.

And Sunday is a busy day as

they're always open on the weekend

Yeah.
They do.

So I sometimes
miss this.

I have to check
the shop opening
times carefully here.

I can't order food
in the middle of
night here...

But actually...

I started to feel like this...

What?

You know, all the people who work in the shop have their family too.

Let me
go home.

If they close early,
it means that they have
time to spend with their family.

So it gave me an idea that an early closing shop isn't necessarily bad.

At the same time,
it made me feel a bit
sad that Koreans can't do the same.

There is no one
who doesn't want

It means that people work late because they have to, not because they want to.

to spend time
with their family
after work.

Exactly. It must be because of the system
that you have to compete
so hard to survive.

Even nowadays, you can't guarantee that you get paid your effort back.

It's red.

It tasted bitter.
